Richmond City and District.

After the most angry and disgusting canvass ever known in this city the elections terminated yesterday in a complete Conservative victory in this senatorial district, and the election of the Conservative nominees for the House of Delegates in this city without opposition.

The great contest was between the nominees of the Conservative party, Messrs. Johnson, Tanner, and Worthan; and two Independents, Messrs. Knight and Starks; and one Radical, NORMAND SMITH.

The main issue raised by the Independents was with Messrs. Jounson and Tan-NER; the attack, however, being directed upon General Jounson. The Independents. KNIGHT and STARKE, with their allied orators, sought most carnestly the support of negroes and Radicals to enable them to beat their white brethren of the Conservative party.

The appeal was unsuccessful, as the returns show. In Jackson Ward, the negro stronghold, KNIGHT and STARKE got the large majority of 677. In the city these gentlemen got 829 votes more than NORMAND SMITH, Radical; and this 829 votes, we may fairly assume, is the whole vote they received from the Conservative bolters who we may suppose would not vote for SMITH.

We publish the returns in full. Johnson's majority over KNIGHT in the city is 527, and in the city and county 174. TANNER's majority over Knight in city and county is 312, and WORTHAM's in county and city over KNIGHT is 502, and over Normand Smith is 1,895.

We consider this victory the most important ever gained in this city. The expedient resorted to by the Independents was fraught with the most serious danger to this city in its social, political, and commercial relations. Our people may be deeply grateful that the expedient failed. The narrow escape that we have all made from very dreadful consequences should be a good lesson to us. Never should the people of the city permit the seeds of dissension amongst the intelligent, competent class of society to afford an opportunity for the inferior and incompetent element to help to defeat one body of whites, and thus adulterate the governing class and the public representation. We should fight against this as we would struggle for life itself.

But the great trial is over. The anxiety and labor it subjected the Conservative party to show as ever that all great blessings, public and private, cost a great deal of mental exertion, or muscle, or money. We trust that after this lesson our separated brethren will return to the party that has saved the State, and seek to remedy within the party any evils they perceive, or imagine they perceive, in its management. To extoliate from it, and attempt to beat it with the help of negroes because of a feeling of dissatisfaction with some of its acts, is to display bad faith and resort to a most dangerous remedy. If we profit by what has happened we shall feel better, and our noble city will be far better protected in all her interests and in her social peace and dignity.

The General Elections. Returns from the different States are but partial as yet. We have no definite news from Maryland. New York goes Democratic, and Massachusetts elects Rice (Republican) Governor, beating Gaston (Democrat), the present Governor.

Virginia Elections. We refer the reader to the returns that have reached us.

The Centennial.

The elections being over, and there being some time for paying attention to something more agreeable than quarrelling and electioneering, we may consider the matter of a strong force of negroes from this country. having Virginia well represented at the Phila lelphia Centennial Exhibition. The extensive preparations that have been made, and the concentration there of specimens of the industry and mineral wealth of almost every nation, warn us that Virginia should by no means leave the space allotted to her

No land is richer in those minerals which constitute real national wealth than Virginia. Her gold-veins are not so rich as those of California for instance, but her mines of coal and iron, and lead and gypsum, which do more to enrich the general public than gold, are what people call inexhausible-speaking with reference to the life of nations and the lialitation of time. Yes, they are quite sufficient for this generation, and any number of generations to come, to impress us with the idea that there will be no scarcity of these things for a space of time too long in dating spirit and the counter-movements of the future to excite any concern in our railroad administrations in Virginia their

These rich Virginia minerals should be conspicuously placed in the Exposition at Philadelphia along with the samples of the world's wealth. It will be seen that Old like remarkable expedition upon our rail-Virginia, "the mother of States and statesmen," will be rich in the jewels which Providence with a liberal hand has so abundantly endowed her. The world would thereby discover what would be somewhat a new claim to admiration and a new excuse lished at all in Virginia it would take the for what was at one time considered a hardly pardonable vanity in the Virginians-an indomitable evotion to their old mother and a constant inclination to boast of her exalted merits and beauties.

Besides arraying the mineral and substantial specimens of her native attractions there should be on band documentary and descriptive papers relating to the Virginia lands and the localities which afford strong Mr. C. W. Borron has become the purchaser invitation to immigration. The State Goveroment should look after this matter earn- hereafter be published under one name. estly. We know the zeal of the Executive Judge Nowlin, who has made an enviable in the matter, and trust that the Legislature fame as a journal'st, retires to Carroll will cooperate in the arrangements that are county. positively necessary to enable Virginia to make a creditable display on the great occa-

Politically we were until lately not much impressed with the advantages likely to flow from the Centennial. The principles consecrated by our tathers on the 4th July, 1776, are not now in vigorous existence, and it is matter of regret that the celebration of the centennial anniversary of the Declaration of Independence will appear to be an see the diguified insuper in which he puts expression of national admiration for things himself right before the public. - Chesapeake which the nation itself has in a good degree repudiated.

Nevertheless, we must all admit that there is a great virtue in paying devotion to things great and good even by those who have repudiated them. The act of devotion recalls their merits, and must help to revive the high consideration in which they were formerly held. There is certainly good in that. But there is snother good in the Centennial. It will be a sort of congress of the nations, and intercourse with so large a popudation from abroad will help to enlarge our !

scope of thought and liberalize our views. The vanity of what is called in Europe Yankeeism" is intense, and has been, if it s not now, offensive. If JONATHAN has some of the conceit taken out of him by considering the ingenuity and higher qualities of foreigners it will do him a great deal of good.

There is yet another good to be hoped for from the Centennial. It will be a convention of representatives from all the States. Their free and intimate intercourse will enable them to understand one another better, and we cannot but believe make them appreciate one another better.

We have had a "cruel" fratricidal war, which implanted bitter sectional animosities in the breasts of our people and greatly exaggerated those which existed before the war. Certainly such animosities, if not removable by close social intercourse, will bardly be erased in any other way. At the Centennial interest and intimacy will unite, and a strong wave of good feeling, we may be assured, will do much to wash out the marks of conflict and the rancors of war.

It is particularly desired that Virginia shall appear at the Centennial in her finest array. The officers of the undertaking show the peculiar interest they feel in Virginia. The sons of Virginia who live in the city of PENN are full of hope that Virginia will be there in her dignity and beauty. We published recently an enthusiastic appeal from the pen of a former citizen who now lives in Philadelphia: Mr. E. G. Вооти, who once represented Nottoway county in our Legislature. He is well known in Virginia, and seems to place his heart in the Virginia department of the exhibition. He tenders all his influence and labors to the business of bringing Virginia out with all the attractions that she can offer. If he and others enlisted in the same cause succeed we may be proud of Virginia at the Centennial, and she will achieve a fame there that will be anything but empty. It will be one that will secure to her advantages of much magnitude that will flow to her at a time when her need his great.

Africa.

The late telegrams brought information of bettle between the Liberians and some tribes adjacent to Liberia, in which the Liberians were defeated and driven back bome with the loss of their cannon and twentyfour killed and wounded. This report is not creditable to the Liberians. We had supposed that they understood enough of the art of war to defeat the black savages even though greatly outnumbered. But this defest with so trifling a loss of men is disastrous to their warlike reputation. Remembering the old saying that "the Dutch have taken Holland" we thought we might 1e1sonably count upon the ability of the Africans to take Africa; and have found ourwices mistaken.

It is a damaging conclusion to the race. If t is proved that the little of civilization acquired by the Africans in service amongst civilians in this country so diminishes their force and constancy in war as that the rude burbarians of Africa may defeat them in battle it will be a remarkable fact in considering African character and nature.

CLAY, MARSHALL, JOHN Q. ADAMS, and their peers in the colonization cause, cherished the fond hope that negroes educated in the arts of civilization colonized in Africa would finally civilize that country. It would appear now that they are not likely to disseminate civilization by the aid of the sword; and if they cannot do so by that means we see no alternative for them but to be whipped themselves into barbarism. They must conquer the African barbarians or those barbarians will conquer them.

We shall not be surprised to see the Liberia people-who were not long since colonists but have lately become independentcalling upon General GRANT, as the Mississippi and Louisiana negroes have so often done, to come to their protection. If this happens we see nothing better for the Government to do than to reinforce the barbarians with Such a force put under the command of some of their white sympathizers here and elsewhere might do heroic deeds in making Africa better or worse, and we would bardly undertake to say which.

Certainly the conflict between the Liberians and their nude neighbors is not very encouraging to the views of the philanthro-

The Fast Mail. The Enquirer has been expressing the hope that the South is to be favored with the fast mail trains, as are the people of the Northwest. The Enquirer says that the Department can hold out no inducements to the railroad lines to establish such a schedule as would thus facilitate the mails.

We suppose that the mail trains through Virginia are not able to incur the expenses of such lines. Owing to the unaccommobusiness has suffered, and there is not money in railroad coffers to justify the incurring of extraordinary expenses, and we hardly expect that we of the South will see anything

Owing to disagreements and obstinacy along the routes from Baltimore through Washington and Richmond we have reason to fear that if a rapid railway line was estabroute via Alexandria, Lynchburg, and Danville. It is our misfortune to fall under evil stars in the railcoad firmament. We are not permitted to hope for much until there be some great change. We see no hope at prcsent of a fast mail for Richmond.

The Lynchburg Republican has been consolidated with the Lynchburg Virginian. of the Republican, and the two papers will

Judge Crump's letter, published in the Whig of the 21st, in reply to "Old-Fashioned Man's" charges against the counsel in the case of the Valley Bank, is a complete vindication both of himself and General Johnson, and we only regret that our space does not permit the reproduction of the whole letter. 'The Judge's numerous friends in this county could never have given credence to such wholessle charges of an anonymous writer, but it would be gratifying to them to
